

SOLVE A MURDER AT KILLER NASHVILLE 2007

Interested in CSI?

Then solve a simulated crime scene at Killer Nashville 2007, a conference for mystery and thriller writers and fans August 17-19, 2007 in Nashville at the Cool Springs Marriott Hotel & Convention Center. (www.KillerNashville.com)

Actual law enforcement personnel will create a real CSI crime scene for attendees of Killer Nashville 2007 to solve. Last year's Killer Nashville received curriculum support from the FBI, TBI, ATF, Franklin Tennessee Police Department, Brentwood Tennessee Police Department, and Wilson County Tennessee Sheriff's Department.

The crime scene will be available for review all day Saturday by Killer Nashville attendees.

The mystery sleuth who most-closely solves the crime will win a prize at the Killer Nashville Awards presentations during Killer Nashville's "Dinner with Michael Connelly."

In addition to NY Times bestselling author Michael Connelly (and Killer Nashville Guest of Honor), other workshops presenters include Hallie Ephron, Chris Grabenstein, Daniel J. Hale, P.J. Parrish, Rhonda Pollero, Chris Roerden, and Chuck Sambuchino, editor of Writer's Digest Guide to Literary Agents.

Agent and editor pitch sessions are also available at no extra cost for those attending Killer Nashville. Get an agent! Get a publisher!

Killer Nashville 2007 is sponsored by American Blackguard, The Southeast Mystery Writers of America, Oceanview Publishing, Barnes & Noble Booksellers, First Tennessee Bank, Landmark Booksellers, and Mystery Writers of America.

To register or for more information, visit www.KillerNashville.com, or contact us at contact@killernashville.com.

Limited seating. Advance registration is suggested.